

STAFF JUMPER DAY RAISES £250 FOR SAVE THE CHILDREN

St. Ambrose College teachers celebrated the last day of term with a Christmas jumper day to raise £250 for Save the Children.

Where ever you looked teachers had donned their favourite Christmas presents of days gone back to set the mood for the festive season.

The day raised £250 and left organiser Biology teacher Paul Allen feeling proud as punch. “Our fundraising can be the difference between a hot meal or no meal. It can help bring essential healthcare, education, protection and food to millions of children around the world who are missing out on these basics. I feel this cause is particularly important for the boys to donate to during the Advent season when we reflect on how fortunate we are and reach out to those less fortunate than ourselves.”

Paul added: “The weirdest jumper was one boy improvised using his school jumper by printing out a Santa image and attaching it to his jumper. The jumpers that sing and light up are always a great festive addition.

Pictured from top going down left to right are Jonathan Leisk, Manjeet Singh, Sophie Cockcroft, Alison Hart, Heather Burton, Laurie-Ann Donegan, Catherine McClements, Karine Rousseau, Emma Deans, Paul Allen and Amy Drogan.